TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

THE TEACHERS OF COLUMBIA COUNTY MEET IN ANNUAL SESSION.

The teachers of Columbia county assembled in the Opera House Monday afternoon, when promptly at 2 o'clock Supt. Johnston called the institute to order and introduced Prof. C. M. Parker of Binghamton, N. Y., who at once took charge of the musical department. After singing "Autumn Weather," the devotional exercises were conducted by Rev Mr. Heilman, who read a part of the 23 Psalm and offered prayer.

Rev. Mr. Patterson gave the address of welcome. He said among many excellent things that the greatest expenditure of this commonwealth is to educate her children and hence the great responsibility that rests upon the teachers. The influence of the teachers may last through the lives of the pupils. Stimulate the children to desire knowledge for its own sake. Study that you may know the individual character. You are dealing with minds that are capable of infinite advancement. After the parent, the teacher has the most influence on the children. I venture to say you teachers will gain as much education in comparing notes in your great work as in listening to instructors who are adepts in their respective subjects. Able responses followed by Mr E. B. Beishline and Robt R. Little Esq.

The committee on organization report as officers, Supt. W. C. Johnston, President; Messrs. E. K. Richardson, of Berwick, L. P. Sterner, of Bloomsburg and W. W. Heffner, of Centralia, Vice Presidents; A. F. Terwilliger, Scott, Treasurer; J. Preston Yorks, Jackson, Secretary; and W. W. Heffner, door keeper. These were duly elected as the officers to look after the interests of the institute during the week.

Prof. Lyman Beecher Sperry, of Belleview, Ohio, was the next one introduced. He will be with us all week, and the teachers are happy over the thought of hearing such an able and interesting speaker. He said he was not here as a D. D, but as an M. D., but he nevertheless frequently referred to the Scriptures in his talk. In the first place he said life is worth living. There are people who think life is not worth living, but I think it is and that there is a best way to live. We ought also to live the best way. One man defines life as "the sum of forces which resists death." Others explain it differently, but we get very little life from them. Of the 1,500,000,000 people on the earth the greater part of them live in filth and poverty. The Christians, nobly educated, are physically, morally and intellectually the best that the world has ever known. One-third of the children die before they are five years of age; forty per cent. before twenty-one. The average length of life is now about thirty-seven years, at the beginning of the century it was about thirty-three. There are no vertebrate animals that die of old age until five or six times the age at which they reach maturity. Man does not reach this age until after twenty-five; he should therefore live to be a hundred and twenty-five or fifty years. Any man who can stand with nothing between him and God's green earth and with uncovered head lift his arms heavenward and thank God for physical health is truly healthy, but it would be death or severe illness for most of us to do so. There are places that are more healthy than others. Stanley could go through Africa, but many have to succumb to the climate. To preserve the health of the body preserve the health of the soul. We are what we are to day because we have behaved so badly. It is human nature to accuse others for our own weaknesses.

The institute next sang "List to the song of the Whip-poor-will."

Prof. Noetling of the Normal School, next gave an instructive address on the condition of work. The old education was mechanical, an education of the memory, book learning of words, while the new or present education trains the boys and girls to good intelligent men and women. I hold that a teacher's responsibility is greater and his calling higher than any other in the world, not excepting the gospel ministry even. Train the boys and girls to help themselves. Determine to do your pupils good in every possible way. You must understand a pupil thoroughly in order to teach him. Use geography or history readers and physiologies as reading books instead of the series of readers generally used and get language from all of them. This is what we call concentration of forces. We should teach now for nature.

After some announcements and singing the whip-poor-will song the institute adjourned.

The exercises on Monday night opened with a solo by Prof Parker, "Grandpa Now Dreams of the Past," and responding to a lively encore sang another selection. This was followed by Mrs Abrams, of Sunbury, who rendered a very beautiful piano solo.

Dr. Sperry then introduced Prof. John B. DeMotte, who for over two hours held the attention of the vast audience in speaking and illustrating "The Harp of the Senses, or the Secret of Character Building." The many wonderful illustrations he used must be seen to be believed and appreciated. The process of photographing sound as of musical instruments, he worked at continually for three years and those present can testify to the perfection of his achievements. By means of a small tube with a covering thinner than a soap bubble and a powerful magnifying apparatus to throw the movements on the canvas shows with great brilliance a distinct photograph of each particular sound. He also gave the number of vibrations of the different pitches of sound. His first words were "I do not know you and you do not know me. If I should see you every day I should never know you or you me." The last were these admonitions, conserve your vitality and have an inward reverence for your soul and body. One proof of character building was of an engineer who ran a fast train for some time but at last while speeding around a curve two headlights came together. The engineer was taken from the wreck and put on the same road. The fireman noticed a sort of nervousness in him at the shadows on the track but thought nothing of it until returning he came to that same curve the engineer seemed to be moved by some weighty unseen power, he grasped the lever, throwed off the steam, reversed the drivers and fell over in a dead faint. His nerves had been shocked irreparably and he never ran an engine again.

TUESDAY MORNING.

Prof. Parker led in singing several selections after which Rev. I. M. Patterson announced "Nearer My God to Thee," which was sung by the Institute and followed by reading Romans 8, and prayer.

Dr. Sperry commenced his talk with a short synopsis of what he said yesterday. Among the influences for which we are responsible, I will name war as the first, which has called out the best of our men leaving the feeble at home. Leaving an excess of work for those at home, with that fear of reading in the next paper or receiving a telegram stating the dearest one on earth to us is no more. It is estimated that thirty-five million people have been killed in war. Narcotics are all injurious from alcohol down to tobacco. "There is a way which seemeth right unto man but the end is death," is not only Scripture but science as well. The laws of nutrition are just as inviolable as the laws of gravitation. As a rule men eat too much. A day is set aside by the President and Governor of our states as a day of thanksgiving. We celebrate it by gathering around our tables endeavoring to offer up thanks to the Giver of all things by making pigs of ourselves.

How to teach children to read music rapidly was fully explained by Prof. Parker.

After some remarks by Supt. Johnston in regard to tickets and attendance of teachers, Dr. DeMott spoke on what constitutes a school. Some would give as answers: 1. elegant buildings; 2 beautiful grounds with amply shade, dry play grounds, morally pure and pure water; 3. indoor decoration; 4. pure air; 5. text books and apparatus; 6. method. But all these do not constitute a school, but the teacher. Garfield was right when he said "I would rather have a bench with Mark Hopkins on one end and myself on the other than any university."

Prof. J. P. Welsh said the teachers will receive more good by enthusiasm than by the instruction given during the week. If the teachers go back with a higher ideal of their work then they will do better than formerly. They should adapt themselves to the necessities of the community in which they teach. Some teachers in backward communities sometimes say they could do good work if they had a chance, but they are the ones who have best opportunities to gain telling results. Text books should not be followed too closely.

THE ELEVATOR WORKS.

This new industry is now an assured fact. The money has nearly all been raised, and the contract for the building has been awarded to Thos. Gorrey for $12,000. Ground has been broken and work begun. The location is on Ninth street, below the canal.

TWO FREE BRIDGES

THE CATAWISSA BRIDGE PURCHASED BY THE COUNTY, AND A NEW BRIDGE TO BE BUILT AT BLOOMSBURG.

HISTORY OF THE PROCEEDINGS.

On the 23rd of August, 1892, a petition was presented to the court by citizens, asking for a free bridge across the river at Bloomsburg, and on the same day the court appointed C. H. Moore, M. C. Vance and Simon Hons as viewers to report on the same. On September 21st a petition for a rule to show cause was filed by citizens of Catawissa, and the court made an order staying the proceedings of the viewers until September 26th, when the rule would be disposed of in open court. An answer was filed by the petitioners for a bridge, and depositions were taken. Judge C. R. Savidge was called in to decide the case, by Judge Ikeler, and after hearing he made an order continuing the viewers with leave to file their report on Monday, October 3rd, 1892. On September 30th Judge Savidge filed an opinion discharging the rule to show cause why the proceedings should not be set aside, and on October 3rd the viewers filed their reports in favor of a bridge. To this exceptions were filed by the supervisors and inhabitants of Catawissa township, and also a petition for the appointment of reviewers, and after some skirmishing between the parties pro and con, C. W. Eves, W. S. Fisher, and G. B. Hendershott were appointed reviewers by the associate judges in accordance with an order of Judge Savidge. On May 1, 1893, the report of viewers was filed in favor of a bridge, and was confirmed nisi, and ordered by the court to be laid before the Grand Jury on May 3rd, which was done, and after hearing witnesses, the Grand Jury approved the report of the reviewers, and recommended that the bridge be erected at the expense of the county.

On May 4th, more exceptions were filed by opponents of the bridge, and so it went along from time to time, until last Thursday, November 9th, when Judge Savidge presiding in court with the associates, Murphy and Millard also on the bench, made the following order:

"And now November 9th, 1893, all exceptions having been withdrawn in open court, and all adverse proceedings abandoned, the report of the reviewers and Grand Jury is approved, and it is adjudged that the said bridge is necessary as a county bridge, and that the same is too expensive for the township of Catawissa and the Town of Bloomsburg to bear, and upon the concurrent approval of the same by the county commissioners the said bridge is ordered to be entered of record as a county bridge."

This ends the fight, and nothing remains to be done but for the commissioners to raise the money and construct the bridge. It has been a long struggle, and petitions have been filed before this. The first one was filed in February 15th, 1882, on which the viewers reported in favor of a bridge, but on the appointment of reviewers an adverse report was made. The erection of the bridge will undoubtedly be an advantage to Bloomsburg, and it will also be a benefit indirectly to the whole county

When proceedings were started for a free bridge at Bloomsburg, the stockholders of the Catawissa toll bridge became alarmed, fearful that their property would be depreciated thereby, and the people of Catawissa feared that a free bridge at Bloom and toll bridge at their place would draw trade from there and divert it to the county seat. They therefore filed a petition in court last December asking for viewers to report on the expediency of taking the Catawissa toll bridge for a free county bridge. The court appointed H. H. Hulme, J. W. Hoffman, White Snyder, James Sponenberg, A. K. Smith and Peter Hippensteel, who filed their report on Sept. 27th in favor of taking the bridge, and fixed the damages to the company at $34,000. On Sept. 27th the Grand Jury approved the report. There were exceptions filed to the report of viewers, and the approval of the Grand Jury, and thus it stood until November 8th, when the court, Judge Ikeler presiding, made the following order:

"And now November 9th, 1893, all the exceptions of the citizens and taxpayers and commissioners of said county to the report of viewers and Grand Jury, and all adverse proceedings having been withdrawn and abandoned in open ceurt, the said reports are confirmed absolutely, and it appearing by said reports, and to the court that the bridge described and mentioned in the said report of viewers ought to be declared a county bridge, and is necessary for the public accommodation, and that the payment of tolls thereon is an unjust burden on the travelling public and the people of the townships near where the same is located, the report of viewers is approved, and the damages shall be payable out of the county treasury, and the said bridge shall be taken possession of by the county commissioners, and shall be, and is hereby declared a county bridge, and all tolls for travel thereon shall cease,"

On the same day the county commissioner signed the following:

"We hereby approve the proceedings in the above case, and join with the court in the approval of the above stated report."

The Catawissa bridge thereupon became a free county bridge, and tolls ceased at 2:30 p. m. on Friday.

A bird has flown beyond thy sight;
Its song was light and life to thee;
Now brightest days are tinged with night,
And earth holds nothing fair to see.
But list, my friend, 'tis well, 'tis well;
All lives lie rooted deep in pain;
To-day's heart-sobs and saddening knell
May be for thine eternal gain.

The lessons hardest to acquire
Bring greatest recompense at last;
Souls broader grow when bathed in fire:
God still guides rudder, helm and mast!
We do not understand the path:
To us it seems a trackless waste:
But in the soul's sweet aftermath
Each hidden purpose will be traced.

THE OLD SETTLER.

His Uncle Snebecker's Story of the Widow Pudgecrack.

"Wull, Squire," said the Old Settler, "the summer is past an' the harvest is ended. How's yer pigs fattenin'?"

"Only so-so, major," replied the Squire. "That Yorkshire breed o' pigs don't seem to gether heft suddent ez they mowt."

"Is them pigs o' your'n Yorkshires?" asked the Old Settler.

"Nothin' shorter!" exclaimed the Squire. "Yorkshire from tail to nozzle."

"Yorkshires?" said the Old Settler, maliciously. "Wull, now, b'gosh, from the build on 'em I thort they was plowsheers?"

"Meanin' their heads?" said the Squire.

"Jedgin' 'em from their heads. Yes," replied the Old Settler.

"Come to think on it, major," said the Squire, "them heads is a leetle sharp an' p'nted, an' ca'c'lated pooty well to turn up the sile, but I don't keep pigs for their heads. I keep pigs for their hams, an' tenderlines, an' shoulders an' setch. Our folks don't winter over on head cheese, our folks don't."

"Whose folks does, b'gosh?" demanded the Old Settler, testily.

"I didn't say as anybody's did," replied the Squire.

"But ye sinniwated!"

The Squire didn't say whether he had insinuated or whether he hadn't, but a suspicion of a smile lurked about him. There was silence for awhile, which the Old Settler broke abruptly by saying:

"Speakin' o' the summer bein' past an' the harvest bein' ended alluz puts me in mind o' the story o' the Widder Pudgecrack an' the harvest on her clearin', ez my uncle, Snebecker Giles, usety tell it. It all happened in the Wild Gander Ridge deestric', fer I don't think tha was a man in the hull o' the Sugar Swamp deestric' ez could 'a had the heart to do w'at Shadrack Biff o' Wild Gander done, an' tha was men in Sugar Swamp mean enough, b'gosh, to pass lead sixpences on a blind fiddler at a dance, an' one of 'em were Tobin Tidfit, which I hadn't orter say, I don't s'pose, Squire, bein' ez he were a relation o' your'n; but facts is facts."

The Old Settler paused to see how this little reference affected the Squire, and he seemed disappointed when the Squire said:

"That's so. He were meaner than cow itch, Uncle Tobin were."

"But had his good p'ints," said the Old Settler. "He know'd which dimmyjohn had the best stuff in it."

"That runs in the fam'ly, major," said the Squire, smiling again.

"An' he never drinked alone," said the Old Settler. "That don't run in the fam'ly."

"That's onfort'nit for you, major," said the Squire, with a still broader smile.

The Old Settler looked hard at the Squire for awhile, but let the subject of Tobin Tidfit drop and went on with the story of the Widow Pudgecrack's clearing.

"My uncle, Snebecker Giles, were goin' through the Wild Gander Ridge deestric' 'long late in December, wunst, sellin' medicine fer sniffles in sheep, an' he came to a clearin' where tha were a slommickin' great big chap sot out on the woodpile skinnin' mushrats. Uncle Snebecker pulled up his hoss an' hollers out to the chap:

"'Hullo, neighbor! What clearin' is this?'

"'The Widder Pudgecrack clearin',' says the chap, keepin' on with his mushrat skinnin'.

"'Is the widder in?' says Uncle Snebecker.

"'Wull, ruther!' says the chap, larfin' like a hyeny. 'She's ben in these two weeks—way in,' he says.

"Uncle Snebecker didn't know e'zactly w'at to make outen this, but he says:

"'Kin I see the widder, think?'

"'Wull,' says the chap, larfin' ag'in, 'not jist now; but if yer a good, stiff Hard-shell Baptis', an' don't backslide, the chances is that ye'll run ag'in her one o' these days,' he says.

"Uncle Snebecker begun to git mad now, an' he says, pooty loud:

"'See here!' he says. 'If ye think ye kin pick me up fer a consarned idjit yer barkin' up the wrong tree fer coons! What's the reason I can't see the widder now?'

"'Wull,' says the chap, larfin' more'n ever, 'I dunno why ye can't, unless it's 'cause the widder's dead!'

"Then the chap went on skinnin' his mushrats, an' Uncle Snebecker were goin' on, w'en the chap hollers to him an' says:

"'Guess ye don't know about the Widder Pudgecrack, do ye?' he says.

"Uncle Snebecker said he didn't.

"'Wull,' says the chap, 'ye musn't go 'way without hearin' 'bout the widder,' says he. 'It'll be wuth yer while.'

"So Uncle Snebecker stayed to hear about the widder.

"'A year ago, now,' says the chap, 'this wa'n't the Widder Pudgecrack clearin', 'cause tha wa'n't no Widder Pudgecrack then, an' tha wa'n't no clearin'. The Widder Pudgecrack then were jist plain Tabithy Ann Flint, ez teached the Wild Gander deestric' school. Tabithy Ann were gettin' to'ards the time w'en it wa'n't no trick at all fer her to recomember back fer forty year an' better, an' the chances was that she'd be Tabithy Ann Flint when she passed over Jordan. But Sampson Pudgecrack kim along about then, an', thinkin' Tabithy Ann mowt be a savin' sort of a wife to tie to, he ast her, an' Tabithy Ann didn't waste her time a-sayin' no. Sampson he bought this here land an' put up that air cabin yender, an' him an' Tabithy Ann set down to it. Sampson he buckled in like a house afire an' cleared off the brush, an' by the time the snow went off he had a clearin' that nobody could sneeze at. He sowed it to rye an' he plowed it fer 'taters, an' left room fer corn an' buckwhit an' setch.

"'Jist ez Sampson got things in that kind o' shipshape he were onconsid'rit enough to leave Tabitha Ann a widder with all that clearin' an' things on her hands. It wa'n't jist the thing fer Sampson to do, an' when 'tater plantin' time an' corn plantin' time kim round sumpin' had to be did. Tha had to be somebody to 'tend to them things, an' so the Widder Pudgecrack done the bes' thing she could, an' married Potiphar Bubb. Potiphar he pitched in an' got in the corn an' 'taters, an' made the garden, an' sowed the buckwhit an' got a pig to fatten, an' things was movin' nicest kind. Potiphar cut the rye an' the hay an' got it in, an' then w'at did he do but foller Sampson an' leave the Widder Pudgecrack clearin' without no head ag'in.'

"'This were hard on the widder. Course the rye were cut an' the hay were in an' the 'taters an' corn an' buckwhit was planted, but what o' that? The 'taters had to be dug, the corn had to be cut an' the buckwhit harvested and thrashed. Somebody had to do that. So the widder didn't raise no objections w'en Job Saprider said he'd be willin' to do that for her, an' she changed her name to Saprider. Job were a snorter to work, an' he kep' things a runnin' right up to the handle. He dug the 'taters and got 'em in, an' cut the buckwhit an' thrashed it, an' gethered the corn an' shelled it, and got in the garden truck and stowed everything all away snug an' proper, to inj'y it durin' the winter. But Job didn't hev no better jedgment than Sampson and Potiphar had, an' w'at does he do but go an' leave the widder a widder ag'in, an' she jist a ca'c'lating her pooticest on having somebody to cheer her up w'en the winter winds begun to beller!

"'This is tough on me!' said the widder; 'this is pooty tough!'

"'Job had stayed long enough to git the pig good an' fat, an' if he'd waited a week or so he could a killed it for the widder, but he didn't, an' so she had to git it killed, an' cut up, an' packed away in the cellar herself. But winter were comin' an' she were lonesome, an' so, 'long about Thanksgivin' time, w'en Shadrack Biff, that druv team fer the tan'ry, took pity on the widder an' tol' her that she needn't pine, 'cause he'd make it a p'int to cheer her up. She were so thankful to him that she said yes, an' she quit bein' the Widder Saprider an' begun bein' Mrs. Shadrack Biff. But her joy were too suddent, I guess, fer two weeks ago she quit bein' a widder or anything else in this vale o' tears. I think,' says this mushrat-skinnin' chap to my Uncle Snebecker, 'that I tol' ye awhile ago that she were in, didn't I? An' that ye mowt run ag'in her one o' these days if ye were a good, stiff Hardshell Baptis' an' didn't backslide? Wull, that's where she is.'

"'An' w'at did the widder do but leave to Shadrack all that clearin' an' all the rye that Sampson Pudgecrack sowed, an' all the 'taters an' corn an' buckwhit and garden truck that Potiphar Bubb planted, an' that Job Saprider gethered an' thrashed an stowed away so snug, an' the pig that Job fattened, and that the widder packed away in the cellar, all fer Shadrack to jist lay to this winter an' in'jy an' feel good over! An' w'at do ye s'pose Shadrack's gointer do nex' week? Why, he's gointer get hitched to the snappy little Widder Bly, o' Lost Crow Barren, an' jist sit her down on the Widder Pudgecrack clearin' to help him inj'y them blessin's! Now w'at do ye think o' Shadrack Biff?' says the mushrat-skinnin' chap, larfin' like a hyeny ag'in.

"'I think he orter be tarred an' feathered an' rid outen the kentry on a rail!' says my Uncle Snebecker. 'An' I'd like to be the one to do it, b'gosh!' says he.

"'No,' says the chap, droppin' his mushrats. 'Wull, says he, 'I'm Shadrack Biff!'

"I tell ye, Squire, it's a durn good thing fer that mushrat-skinnin' hyeny that my Uncle Snebecker didn't hev no tar an' feathers with him. Ez it were, he shook the dust o' the Widder Pudgecrack's clearin' offen his feet an' got away from it ez fast ez his hoss'd let him, he were so consarned disgusted with Shadrack Biff!'—Ed Mott, in N. A SLIGHT MISTAKE.

An Officious Smart Man Gets Himself Into Trouble.

The smart man was getting off a train, when he saw a couple ahead of him who at once challenged his attention and indignation. The husband was walking off with his hands in his pockets, while the wife carried a baby and a large basket and valise.

This was too much for the smart man and, stepping up to the overloaded woman, he said:

"Let me assist you, madam," and, seizing the basket and valise, he ran after the husband, whom he grabbed without ceremony.

"Here, sir, carry these things for your wife. I should think you would be ashamed to call yourself a man, and permit your wife to bear all the burdens in this way. Let this be a lesson to you, sir, to—"

"Hello!" interrupted the stranger, indignantly, "she ain't my wife. I never saw the woman in my life till now."

At the same time the woman was shrieking at the top of her voice: "Stop thief," and it took the smart man's utmost eloquence to convince the depot policeman that he was not a sneak thief, instead of a self-appointed reformer of other people's morals and manners.—Detroit Free Press.

AN ENORMOUS MEAL.

A Michigan Man Eats Five Sirloin Steaks at a Sitting.

James Hall, a tall, hollow-eyed, raw-boned Michigander, is not exactly the sort of a man one would like to feed on contract. He has been in New York only three days and already threatens to smash all previous records as a steak-eater. The Stadt Berlin hotel, Second Fourth avenue, was honored by his presence on Thursday, and it took the whole time of one able-bodied man to keep him supplied with meat and drink. At an early hour the other morning Mr. Hall walked into the dining room of the hotel and drank a tumblerful of whisky. "Bring five sirloin steaks," he said, reflectively, wiping his mouth with a napkin. The waiter fell back a step and stared with jaws distended and bristly hair slowly rising. "Say, see here, sonny," remarked Mr. Hall, abstractedly laying his hand on his hip pocket, "you've got to bring them steaks, and hurry them quick, or there's going to be trouble."

The guests rose from the tables and crowded around Mr. Hall, as the second in the list of five vanished with a suddenness that would have turned Daniel Lambert yellow with envy. The third came and went, and then the ruling passion asserted itself and the crowd began to bet eagerly on the result, with Apoplexy a strong favorite at seven to ten. Now the fourth victim appeared and Mr. Hall took it in about a dozen bites. The murmur of voices had sunk to a gasping silence as the fifth and last in the line came up. Mr. Hall was now in the home-stretch and running easily. From this point the contest was a mere hand-gallop for him, and without the slightest urging he passed under the wire the easiest of winners without having turned a hair.

Then Mr. Hall, after a short nap, began to yell like a Cherokee on the war-path and evinced a disposition to clean out the hotel. Two policemen dragged him to the station, and thence he was taken to the insane ward at Bellevue hospital. He is thirty-seven years old.

Noble Deed of a Big Newfoundland Attacked by a Cur.

A big Newfoundland was going peaceably along a street in Pittsburgh when a cross-grained cur began snapping at him and snarling savagely. This started one or two other dogs, which joined in the attack. The big dog took no notice until compelled to in self-defense. Then he turned and sent the crowd of persecutors flying in all directions; all except the ring-leader, which fell sprawling in the middle of the street, and was beginning to get the drubbing he deserved when things took a very unexpected turn.

A cable car came dashing down the hill, with clanging bell, right upon the dogs. Nobody is expected to warn dogs of danger, and so the car was almost upon them when the policeman cried: "Get out!"

The big dog saw the danger and sprang aside, but his late assailant was on his back and too much in dread of his punishment to see anything else. There he lay and in a second more would be crushed.

The Newfoundland saw the situation, and, after he had partly turned away, sprang back and snatched him, still whining and begging for mercy, out of the very jaws of death. He laid him in the gutter, and then, as though further retaliation had entirely escaped his mind, he gave a good-natured wag or two of his tail and started on up the street.

The Angels of The Bible.

NO. I.—GABRIEL.

Gabriel is the first angel mentioned in the Scripture to whom a name is given. Dan. viii. 16. But it is to be observed that the name is not given by Daniel; he says "I heard a man's voice between the banks of the Ulai, which called and said, Gabriel make this man to understand the vision." In chapter ix. 21, Gabriel is again named and is spoken of as having upon this occasion come upon wings: being caused to fly swiftly." We next hear of Gabriel by name, when in Luke i. 19, he appears and announces to Zacharias the birth of John the Baptist, upon which occasion he asserts himself: "I am Gabriel that stands in the presence of God;" thus designating his place as well as his righ to speak. Six months afterward, Grabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, to announce the conception and birth of the Messiah, Luke i, 26.

Gabriel is not otherwhere mentioned by name in Scripture, and nowhere is called an Archangel, although in literature frequently thus distinguished.

Considering the kind of missions in which he was employed, it is not improbable that it was Gabriel who appeared to Hannah as "the angel of the Lord," and announced the birth of Samson. Judges xiii, 3.

Seeing that Gabriel was the angel of the Annunciation to the Virgin Mother, it seems entirely fitting that he should be the angel of the Lord who announced the birth of the Messiah to the shepherds at Bethlehem, and was the leader of the heavenly host which appeared upon that event. (Luke ii, 9,) and who watched over the infant Jesus in his journey to and from Egypt, protecting Him from the perils of the way. Matthew ii, 13. Thus he would seem to be fairly entitled to his cognomen of "The Angel of the Annunciation."

The Jews do not take kindly to the angel Gabriel. No doubt, having doubted the divinity of Jesus Christ, the messenger who asserted that divinity as a revelation from God would be counted as their enemy.

The Persians call him "the angel of the revelations;"—and Mohammed pretends that The Koran was revealed to him by Gabriel, and he makes great account in that book of the assistance given him by Gabriel, and of the several appearances to him of that angel.

The Poets, such as write upon themes such as touch upon the powers and duties of the heavenly host, have frequent references to Gabriel, and give to him attributes and places not accorded to him in the Scriptures. This by a proper license of those writers, in as much as the sacred writings are silent upon those matters. What his place may be in the heavenly hierarchy, whether among the cherubim or seraphim, the Archangels, princes or leaders, is neither revealed or hinted at; but he stands in the presence of God, is his chosen messenger, the revealer of his secrets; and certainly among the inhabiters of the Earth, the angel who announces the Messiah, the Saviour, should be to us the most loved and lovable, the nearest to us, the most human in his sympathies, although, perhaps, not the most distinguished and powerful in the Angelic host. All his appearances concern the Messiah, all his messages are of love and peace and happiness to the Human Race.

Milton calls him "Chief of the Angelic Guards," and second "in military prowess," to whom by lot was "given charge and strict watch, that to this happy place of Paradise, no evil thing approach or enter in;" and celebrates the battle

"Where the might of Gabriel fought
And with the fierce ensigns pierced the deep array
Of Moloch, furious king, who him defied,
And at his chariot wheels to drag him bound Threatened." P. L. vi, 355.

But we cannot readily think of the messenger of God who brought 'peace on earth, good will to men' as a military leader of great prowess.

Dante, in his "Divine Comedia" mentions Gabriel several times by name and designation, always in connection with the incarnation or cognate matters and makes him an attendant upon the Virgin Mary, chiefest among the angelic host, her guard of honor.

Tasso, in his "Jerusalem Delivered" feigns him sent to Godfrey to urge a more vigorous prosecution of the war, and describes his flight and approach to the earth on that mission.

"Gabriel he calls, the herald of his grace
And faithful messenger, who oft repairs
On blessed errands to the human race,
And, sweetly solacing the virtuous, bears
Back to his mercy-seat the incense of their prayers." Canto I, St. XI.

And in the same connection describes him as the "winged Archangel."

The general theory or legend that the last trump shall be sounded by Gabriel, I have not been able to trace. Having announced the salvation of man through Jesus Christ, he might also call the dead to the resurrection. But that case shall have several very important circumstances—to-wit—"The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, and with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trump of God." 1 Thess. iv, 16; but neither there nor in 1 Cor. xv, 52 is it said in whose hands the trump shall be. That Gabriel, the messenger of God to the Virgin, the mother, should on that great day, be at the side of the Messiah, the Son, and be the trumpeter at whose blast the dead should be awakened, is so natural, that we assent to the popular idea, and expect him to be also "the angel of the resurrection."

BRIGHT SCENES IN PENNSYLVANIA.

We remember of coming up from Mauch Chunk to Wilkesbarre one morning by railway. The acclivity just outside of Mauch Chunk is quite appreciable, and the train ran slowly. Eastward, the spruce, the hemlock and the pine were dressed in immaculate beauty on the summit of the mountain. Their arms were bending with the wealth of winter. A thin mist covered the mountain, the Lehigh, and the town, as a veil covers the face of a bride; and just above all the sun was opening his burning eye upon this Nature's sublimity. It was a grand morning there, and then grand auspices of the creation of a new day. Another time we saw sublimity at Shickshinny. The sun had just risen from his couch of flame, and the fine mountains of Shickshinny seemed to shrug their great shoulders, shaking off the shades of night, and striding forth to meet the sun. The town was a gem of fire and the Susquehanna a stream of golden radiance. These scenes are daguerreotyped upon our memory. They will never fade.

One bright morning we stood upon the steps of the Capitol building of Jefferson City, Missouri. We could see far up the Missouri river and the sun was putting in his best work. He looked like a new made crown fresh from the hands of the Almighty. He was pouring from his radient urn his streams of gold upon the hills and that broad river. These morning scenes and evening scenes are pictures when God superintends the camera. We are told that views from Prospect Rock, near Wilkesbarre, are fine. We know they are from Council Cup, near Wapwallopen — views fifteen miles up the river, and at least fifteen down stream; and in summer the Susquehanna is studded with emerald isles that are very beautiful. We need not go out of Pennsylvania to get grand scenery, and we have a great country full of it. Colorado abounds in sublimity; so does Yosemite Valley, and if we wish to hear the thunders of the sea, listen to the voice of Niagara. We would like sometimes, to look upon the Alps covered with perpetual snows and eternal sunshine; upon the sombre pyramids, counting off the periods of time along the sluggish Nile. We think we would gather inspiration from viewing the crumbled archways and colonnades of Rome, and the sculptured marble fragments of Greece, but our country presents grandeur and beauty of virgin freshness, unlimited and unmildewed by the ages of the hoary past.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

THE HAWAIIAN QUESTION.

SECRETARY GRESHAM'S REPORT.

The President's Annual Message.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13, 1893.

Secretary Gresham's official report to the President showing that great injustice was done to the native Hawaiian government by the action of the U. S. Minister to that government under the last administration, in practically compelling the Queen by a display of marines from the U. S. S. Boston to abdicate in favor of the Provisional government which was formed, it is believed largely if not entirely by the advice and connivance of that minister, for the purpose of carrying out the scheme of the annexation of Hawaii, which played such a conspicuous part during the closing days of the Harrison administration, has for a time relegated the financial and tariff questions to back seats, and everybody is discussing the Hawaiian matter.

The report concludes with the recommendation, which was approved by the President and the members of the cabinet, that the wrong should be righted as far as lay in the power of this government by restoring the native government of Hawaii to the position it occupied before the Queen was forced by a U. S. Minister, not by the Provisional government, to abdicate. This was a bold and fearless step for the President to take, but believing it to be right he took it and issued the necessary orders to Minister Willis, who barring accidents arrived at Honolulu more than a week ago, to carry it into effect, although he knew full well that it would at first be unpopular, particularly with those who would only look at the surface of the question and regard it merely as the use of the power of the United States to overthrow an alleged republic and set upon its feet a deposed monarchy. But those who know the President were not surprised that he should prefer being right to being popular; he has been doing that sort of thing ever since he has been in public life.

There are not many democratic Senators and Representatives in Washington; but some of those here who were at first disposed to criticise the action of the President have already changed their minds, and it is believed that when the next news arrives from Hawaii they will all be disposed to acknowledge that the administration took the only right and proper course. If, as the administration believes, the provisional government only existed because the native Hawaiians believed it to have been created and supported by the power of the United States, it would at once cease to exist as soon as Minister Willis officially announced the contrary, as he doubtless did as soon as he arrived at Honolulu. It the Queen should then be unable to maintain herself in power that will be her own affair, as neither she nor those who might attempt to overthrow her government would receive aid from the United States. In other words, the action of the United States is merely intended to allow the Hawaiians to govern themselves in any way they may see fit without any outside interference, and as the first step towards that end it was necessary that things should be restored to the same condition in which they were when Minister Stevens interfered to overthrow the old government. The question of monarchy or republic had nothing whatever to do with it, nor was sentiment allowed to intrude. It was only a question of right and wrong, and the administration, acting upon the information gathered by Mr. Blount during his long stay and investigation in Hawaii, has only done what it believes to be right, and what it believes the American people, regardless of politics, will in the end endorse. The power of the United States is too great to be exercised to the detriment of its weaker neighbors, and the sense of fair play is too prevalent in the United States for the people to wish a wrong perpetuated because it was done by a United States official.

President Cleveland is devoting nearly all his time to writing his annual message to Congress, and in order to work without interruption he will only come to the White House on cabinet days until it is completed. There will be some surprises in the message for those who think that the results of the recent state elections will have any effect upon the President's policy.

Assistant Secretary Curtis will act as Secretary of the Treasury until Secretary Carlisle completes his annual report, to the preparation of which he is now devoting his entire time.

The annual report of First Assistant Post Master General Jones recommends that the experimental free delivery in small towns and villages be discontinued at the end of the current year, the annual outlay of $10,000,000 not being justified by the results of the experiment, which he regards as a failure. Another great republican scheme—the ocean mail subsidy—is also reported to be a flat failure, and Congress will probably be asked to repeal the law authorizing it.

THE BOY IN THE MOW.

There glides through the barn's mammoth door
A sweet-scented hill-top of hay;
An athlete, with strength bubbling o'er,
Now flings it in fork-fulls away.
Another is stowing it back,
With white pearls of toil on his brow;
And, treading the hay in his track,
Looms faintly the boy in the mow.

Through crevices often can he View, past the old barn-wall of brown,
A river that leads to the sea,
A railway that drives to the town.
"Oh, when shall my fortune make hay
In yon fields of splendor, and how?
'Twill wait for full many a day;
I'm only a boy in a mow."

A cloud like a flag from the sky
Is splendidly spread and unrolled;
The sun reaches down from on high,
To fringe it with yellow and gold.
"Oh, when will Heaven's mercy my name
As bright as those colors allow?
But earth has no glory or fame,
To waste on a boy in the mow."

A cloud in the west, like a pall,
Creeps upward, and hangs in the light;
It carries a gloom over all,
It looks like a part of the night.
With clamor the thunder-bolts swarm,
And trees bend in agony now;
"'Tis thus, too, that poverty's storm
Would conquer the boy in the mow!"

The clouds have flown into a dream,
The birds are discoursing in glee,
The smile of the sun is agleam
On river and hill-top and tree.
Look up to the heavens, little lad,
And then to your earth-duties bow;
And some day both worlds may be glad
To honor the boy from the mow!

WAGON END GATE.

Directions for Constructing a Very Useful and Handy Device.

A is the end gate or board. B is an iron hinge 1¼ inches wide by ¼ inch thick, the joint of which is shown at C. This hinge is fastened with wood screws on under side of the bin and extends up on back of end gate to top of the bin. E is the brace commonly used on frame wagon bins, bolted at the lower end to cross piece under the bin, and at upper end with 2½-inch bolts to side bin. This brace has two outward-extending flanges, as shown at upper end. D is the lock lever inside of ⅜-inch round iron bent at right angles and fitting loosely in holes in the outward-extending flanges of the brace, E, and having a pair of lock nuts at F to hold the lock lever and also to tighten the lock lever should it become loose. G is a ⅜-inch round rod passing down through the opposite end of the bin to hold end gate in place on opposite side. To remove the end gate, turn the lock lever (D) over to the left. This releases the hinge (B) at under end, which is now free to move back, and the end board can be easily withdrawn. H shows a button on the hinge (B). This is to prevent the lock lever (D) from dropping down too far.—Farm and Home.

NEVER FAILS TO WORK.

A Potato Digger Which Is Always in Shipshape Condition.

I take the liberty of commending to our editor for use on his experimental farm in a dry season like this, the "only original" non-patented potato digger, a drawing of which I inclose. I do this on the following solid grounds: 1. It is self-acting, is always in gear and will begin operations as soon as admitted to the field. 2. Its elevator has a double back-action, raising the tubers and earth with perfect ease and separating them perfectly. 3. The gearing is so ingeniously covered that it cannot be worn out or clogged by gravel, weeds or vines. 4. Its adjustment is automatic, and the point of the digger is self-sharpening. It will follow crooked rows and dig deep or shallow in hard-pan or sandy loam, never missing a hill. 5. It will pick up the potatoes, carry them to market, and get as much for small as for large ones.

SOME SHORT FURROWS.

SOME men who are the most careful about the fit of their own collars are the most careless about the fit of those their horses wear.

DO NOT run wild after "novelties," let the enthusiast do that. Be content with that which has been tried and found to be good.

SOME dairymen "get along" better than others because they keep their farm buildings painted and the fences at a lawful height.

CULTIVATION of the soil to kill weeds is poor cultivation, but to cultivate so thoroughly that weeds do not grow, is the science of gardening and farming.

A DOG'S usefulness is singularly misunderstood when he is considered valuable merely to drive in the cows from the pasture. Some dogs, however, are better to drive cows than are irresponsible hired hands who will thoughtlessly hurl stones and sticks at them.—American Agriculturist.

THE COLUMBIAN,
Bloomsburg, Pa.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1893.

Representative Tewksbury, who has served two terms in the legislature as one of the representatives from Columbia county, is a possible candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress in the Seventeenth district, which constitutes Sullivan, Columbia, Montour and Northumberland counties, to succeed Congressman Wolverton. Mr. Tewksbury said to a Patriot representative that he would rather work in the harness he now has on than adjust a new one, but that his friends are urging him to be a candidate and that he was considering the matter. There is a possibility that Hon. Charles R. Buckalew, of Columbia, the immediate predecessor of Mr. Wolverton, may also be a candidate. He has not yet positively decided what he will do.—Patriot.

The result of the election in the Carbon-Monroe judicial district was a peculiar one. Hon. John B. Storm had been appointed by Gov. Pattison to succeed the late Judge Dreher. Monroe County instructed its conferees for Mr. Storm, and Carbon County for Hon. Allen Craig. The conferees could not agree, and went from place to place until the last day for filing papers for nomination. Nomination papers were sent to Harrisburg by both Carbon and Monroe County—the former for Mr. Craig and the latter for Mr. Storm. Through some technicality and exceptions being filed the tickets were ordered to be printed without the name of Craig. The republicans had nominated Mr. Heydt, a young attorney of Carbon County. The tickets were printed bearing the names of Storm and Heydt. Mr. Craig did not withdraw from the contest, hence it was necessary that his name be written by all who desired to vote for him. The following is the result of the voting:

	Craig.	Storm.	Heydt.
Carbon	2987	10 0	2961
Monroe	535	2181	700
Total	3522	3 81	3993

Craig over Storm, 341; Craig over Heydt, 259.

The vote shows how well the new ballot can be used by the Independent voter. The one whose name was written upon the ballot was elected judge.

THE STATE VOTE COMPLETE.

THE OFFICIAL COUNT GIVES JUDGE FELL 138,000 PLURALITY AND JACKSON 135,909.

The Pennsylvania official count shows the total vote—Republican and Democratic—to have been 740,000. The Prohibition vote will increase this about 21,000. Judge Fell has a plurality of 138,000, and Colonel Jackson one of 135,909. The sixty-seven counties complete are as follows:

The Indian Forts.

The Harrisburg Patriot of November 10th says:

G. Dallas Albert, of Latrobe; Jay G. Weiser, Middleburg; H. M. M. Richards, Reading; John M. Buckalew, Fishing Creek, and Sheldon Reynolds, Wilkesbarre, who constitute the commission appointed by Governor Pattison to make inquiry, examine into the number and location and report to the next legislature the advisability of erecting suitable tablets to mark the various forts erected as a defense against the Indians by the early settlers of Pennsylvania prior to 1783, met at the state library and organized by the election of Mr. Buckalew president and Mr. Reynolds secretary. Representative Tewksbury, of Columbia, the author of the act creating the commission, and State Librarian Egle were present by invitation. The commission decided to visit the sites of the old forts of the state and a district was assigned to each member. Mr. Albert will visit all such points west of the Allegheny mountains; Mr. Reynolds' district constitutes the Lebanon Valley; the points along the North and West branches of the Susquehanna river and in the Cumberland Valley will be visited by Messrs. Weiser and Buckalew, while Mr. Reynolds will visit Northeastern Pennsylvania above Columbia county. The members of the commission will file their reports as to the number of forts in their respective districts with Secretary Reynolds, who will submit them to President Buckalew. The most important points in the state will be visited by the commission in a body, after which a meeting will be held some time next Spring to prepare a report to be submitted to the next legislature. Under the provisions of the act the commissioners receive no compensation, but the actual and traveling expenses of the members is paid by the state.

A Pure Baking Powder.

A baking powder that can be depended upon to be free from lime and alum is a desideratum in these days of adulterated food. So far as can be judged from the official reports, the "Royal" seems to be the only one yet found by chemical analysis to be entirely without one or the other of these substances, and absolutely pure. This, it is shown, results from the exclusive use by its manufacturers of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes which totally remove the tartrate of lime and other impurities. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and it is used in no baking powder except the "Royal," the manufacturers of which control the patents under which it is refined.

Dr. Edward G. Love, formerly analytical chemist for the U. S. Government, who made the analyses for the New York State Board of Health in their investigation of baking powders, and whose intimate knowledge of the ingredients of all those sold in this market enables him to speak authoritatively, says of the purity, wholesomeness, and superior quality of the "Royal:"

"I find the Royal Baking Powder composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substance."

Prof. Love's tests, and the recent official tests by both the United States and Canadian Governments, show the Royal Baking Powder to be superior to all others in strength and leavening power. It is not only the most economical in use, but makes the purest, finest flavored and most wholesome food.

"Bad Spells" with the Heart

Dizzy, Faint, in Despair

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cured.

"I have suffered very much during the past few years from

Heart Trouble

Physicians said I might live a number of years, might die any day. I could usually tell when the worst attacks were coming on by feeling a sharp pain in the heart, then violent thumping, shortness of breath, followed by a coldness coming all over me, then DIZZINESS, FAINTNESS, and then, unless I could lie down at once I would fall wherever I was. I never dared to be left alone for I had to have help at once and that applied with vigor. I could not do any work, even to sweeping, and had to be careful of the least excitement. I got very much discouraged at the outlook and thought

There Was No Hope

Of ever finding anything to help me. One day a friend asked, 'Why don't you try Hood's Sarsaparilla? I thought it over and decided to try it, and I thank God for it too. Since I began taking it, three years ago, I have had but one 'bad spell' and that was due to carelessness on my part, and from that I quickly recovered. I cannot tell you how much better I feel and how thankful I am. I feel as if I would like to tell every person in the world about it. I can and do now do all my housework, even to washing." MRS. SARAH TREXLER, 809 Latimer Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

A REMINDER.

It is a long time since we have said anything about unpaid subscriptions, but when our books show thousands of dollars outstanding that we ought to have, and need constantly in our business, it is pardonable if we use these columns occasionally to remind those who owe us, that a newspaper cannot be published on wind. There are some who owe for three years or more, and who pay no attention to statements sent by mail. To such, notice is now given that their accounts must be settled before January 1st. If not paid by that time, they will be charged $1.50 a year, and costs may be made. All who owe for one, two or three years are respectfully requested to call and settle, at $1.00 a year. After an account is three years old it is liable to be charged at the rate of $1.50 a year, as that is the price when not paid in advance. We are compelled to give this notice because of the large sums due us that are scattered all over the county, and as there is certainly nothing unreasonable in the request, we trust that it will meet with a cheerful response.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Two teachers, who were in attendance at the Institute this week, narrowly escaped injuries on Monday morning that might have kept them at home, or have been even more serious in their results. Mr. D. W. Lenihan and Miss Jennie Heaton, of Centralia, started from Gilberton at an early hour to catch the 7:15 train at Mt. Carmel, to come to Bloomsburg. They had to ride in the mail wagon, a two seated vehicle with one horse, driven by a boy. The horse was a professional runaway, and it took this occasion to exhibit its proficiency in that direction. It got beyond the boy's control and went down an embankment. The carriage caught on a stump and the horse tore loose, and ran to Mt. Carmel. The occupants were pitched out and received some bruises, but escaped serious injury. Miss Heaton's dress was torn on a stump. Mr. Lenihan and Miss Heaton walked to Mt. Carmel and caught the desired train, and arrived here at 10:49.

SELL BONDS AT A PREMIUM.

As the county commissioners will soon issue a considerable amount of bonds, they should be disposed of to the best advantage. Such securities are in demand, and if put up at public sale, will no doubt bring a premium. We therefore suggest that when these bonds are ready for sale, they be disposed of in that way. It will give every buyer an equal chance, and those who will pay the highest premium will get them, and the county will be benefitted to that extent.

THE LAST CALL.

Troop K had been chasing Apaches for ten days—first through the gorges of the Rockies and then across the deserts of eastern New Mexico. For ten days big, gruff Capt. Gompers had ridden at the head of his company of seventy trusted cavalrymen, and beside him, mounted on a little Mexican broncho, rode K's bugler, little Johnny Samuels, known among the garrison at Fort Union as "The Kid."

"The Kid" was the idol of every man in the troop. His father, big John Samuels, first sergeant of K, was a born soldier, and loved the western service as but few men could. When, sixteen years before, his dusky Mexican wife presented him with little Johnny he declared that his chief aim in life should be to make "The Kid" a good soldier, one worthy a place in the ranks of his old company. And he kept his word, for at sixteen there was not a better bugler in the service. None who could play "taps" so sweetly, or whose reveille could arouse slumbering troopers without making them curse the bugler.

On the afternoon of the tenth day out the men of K caught their first sight of their game. But the pursued were to be the pursuers. The Indians had received reinforcements and were making a last desperate struggle. It was into this ambush that Capt. Gompers so unconsciously led his men, an act he paid for with his life. From just beyond a cluster of sage brush a few stray bullets were coming, and through the small openings could be seen probably forty red-skins.

"Sound a forward, Kid," said the captain, and the notes had not yet died away when the order for the charge was given.

With raised sabers and horses at a hard run, Troop K broke into the brush expecting to meet the scattering fire of the forty foes in front, but met instead a murderous volley from three hundred red devils on either flank. Capt. Gompers was the first to go down, and as he fell forward on his horse "The Kid" threw his arm around him and drew him across the pommel of his own saddle. The next moment he fell forward onto the body of his dead captain mortally wounded.

When the forty men who were left went into camp that night they erected, as best they could, a rude shelter for their boy bugler and left him in the care of his father.

It was late. The sentries had been changed for the second time an hour before. Duty had for a few minutes called Sergt. Samuels from the side of his son. The sentry on post four, whose beat took him near the place where the bugler lay, was almost half asleep when he was suddenly roused by a bugle's notes sounding reveille. Surely it must be that he had slept and this was a dream. But no, the notes came faint and clear, and now they changed to assembly call. His ears could not deceive him now, and he must report it.

"Corporal—"

"Hush, Jackson, it's the Kid." It was the corporal of the guard speaking. He, too, had been attracted by the strange sound and had sought the source from whence it came!

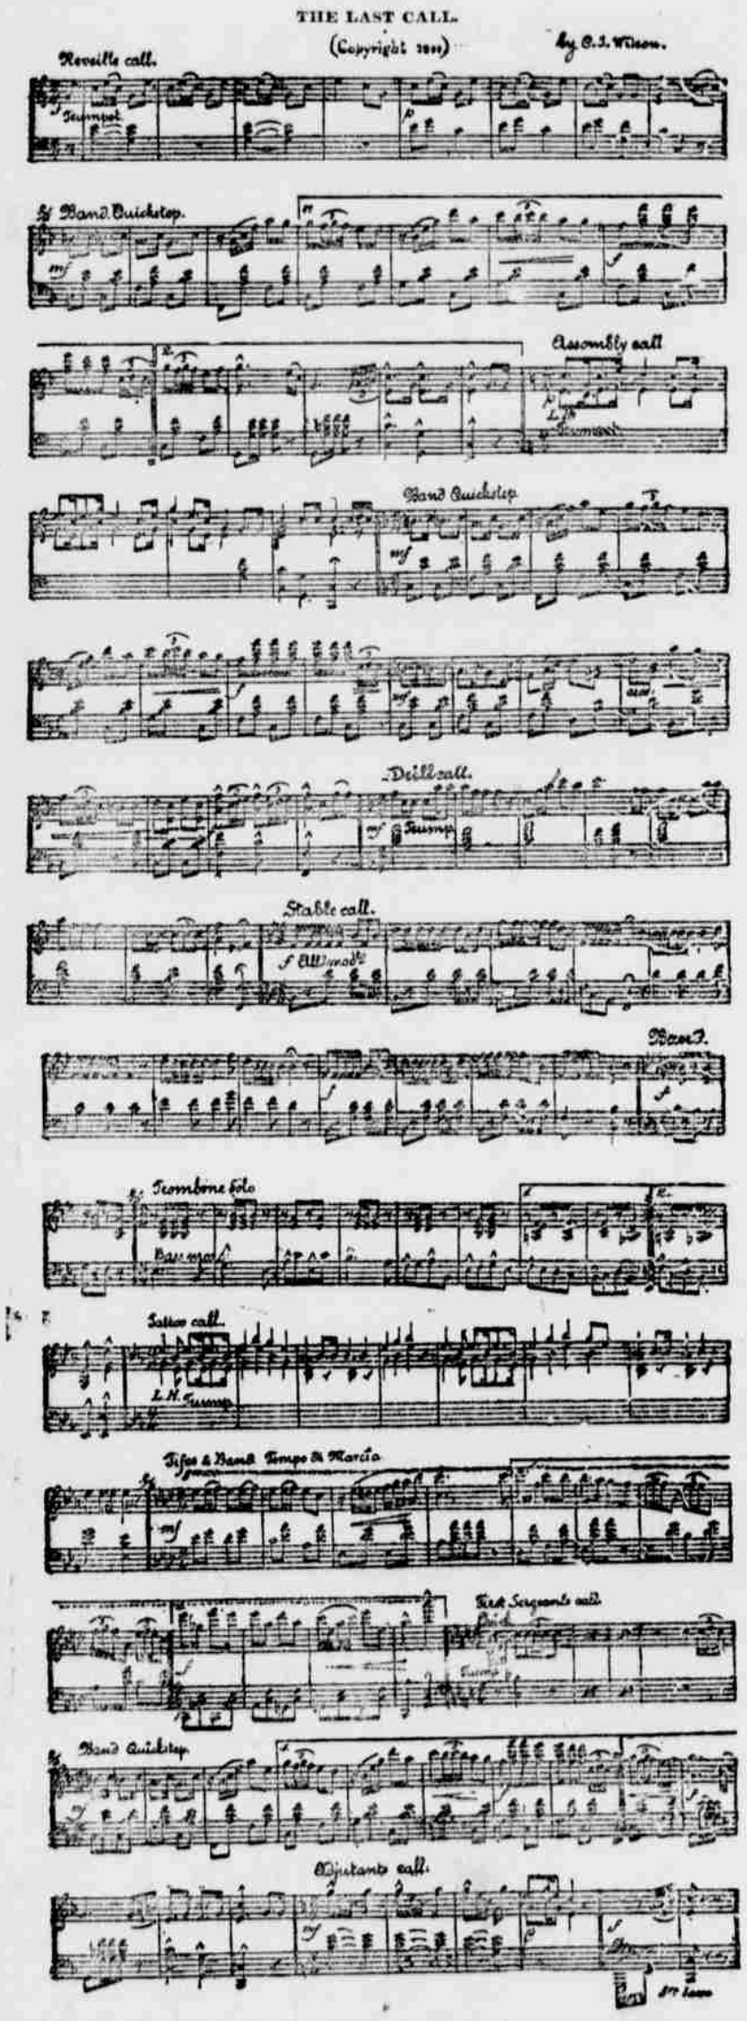
"He is dying, Jackson, and I will relieve you while you call his father. Those are the last calls Johnny Samuels will ever play for K troop."

As the father came the assembly changed to a quickstep and then to drill call. When the dying boy played the stable call even the horses recognized it, and seemed impatient for the expected morning meal. All that was left of Troop K were grouped about the rude couch of their dying bugler, almost every man of them crying as they had never cried before. Still the father's grief was a tearless one, and it was not until the adjutant's call had been played and the first notes of the well-known first sergeant's call caught his ear that he too could express his grief in tears. It was years before that he had taught his boy to play that call—his favorite of them all. The notes grew fainter and fainter; the bugler's breath grew shorter and shorter, and, as the last note died away, the cherished bugle fell from his hand. Little Johnny Samuels, the idol of troop K and the garrison at Fort Union, was dead.

With quivering hand the father raised the boy's bugle to his own lips and played that last call of the soldier's life—taps. Played it as he had played it years before when he was the bugler in the proud company that to-night was so crushed and shattered. His grief was not for long, for with the rising of the morning sun an Indian bullet pierced his heart and he joined his boy in another land.

But a dozen men of K troop ever lived to relate the story of "The Kid's" last call to the sad garrison at Fort Union.

WRIGHT A. PATTERSON.



Influence of Ensilage and Field-Curing on the Digestibility of Forage Corn.

BY H. P. ARMSBY.

During the fall and winter of 1890–91, digestion experiments were made with the green material used in filling two small silos, and also with the resulting silage and with field-cured fodder from the same lot of corn. As has been explained in another place in discussing the losses sustained in the silo, the resulting silage was somewhat abnormal in that the fermentation which it had undergone and the resulting losses of material was excessive, the latter amounting to 29 per cent. and 37 per cent. of the dry matter. Over 32 per cent. of the dry matter of the corn was likewise lost in field curing. The experiments upon these materials, however, are interesting as representing to a certain extent the influence of extreme conditions. While the effect of the fermentation on the digestibility of the corn might be expected to be exaggerated in this case, yet the results serve to show even more clearly on this accouut the nature of the change, and a comparison with results under more normal conditions may give us valuable information. A number of other experiments upon the same subject have been made, both here and elsewhere, notably at the Wisconsin Station. The results of these experiments are summarized on the following pages.

It has generally been held hitherto that the process of ensilage does not increase the digestibility of corn, but that, on the contrary, both ensilage and field-curing decrease its digestibility. The results of these experiments in the main support this belief so far as concerns the ordinary conditions of practice. They do, however indicate that it is possible to increase the digestibility of the woody fiber of corn by excessive fermentation in the silo. They show at the same time, however, that whatever advantage may be gained thus in increasing the digestibility of the least valuable ingredient of the corn is far more than offset by the large loss of valuable material by fermentation and by the decreased digestibility of other ingredients. The results of the experiments may be summed up as follows:

1. The ensilage of maize may considerably increase the digestibility of the crude fiber of the green material.

2. This result is only obtained when the loss by fermentation is so large that the crude fiber is attacked and is at the cost of a decreased digestibility of every other important ingredient.

3. The albuminoids are especially affected by ensilage, a considerable proportion of them being converted into less valuable forms and the digestibility of the remainder being reduced sometimes nearly or quite to zero.

4. Such silage may be considerably more digestible than poorly cured fodder, except as to the albuminoids.

5. Field curing seems in every case to decrease the digestibility of the fresh substance.

6. When the processes are successfully conducted and the losses small, ensilage and field-curing both decrease the digestibility of the fresh material somewhat, and to about the same extent.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely, it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Conn.

NATURE'S REMEDY FOR LIVER COMPLAINT

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE LIVER PILLS

MAKING OF SILK LACE.

Raw Silk Traced From Producer to Consumer.

To Nottingham, England, goes the credit for having placed window curtains within the reach of the masses. As a matter of fact, Nottingham is entirely innocent in the premises and the only connection between the two lies in the fact that Nottingham, being the home of the English lace industry, has been adopted as an appropriate name to be given to the output of our cotton lace manufactories. What Nottingham is to England and Calais and Candre to France, Brooklyn stands to the United States—the home or head center of the lace industry.

To follow a thread of silk from its raw state, through its course of preparation to be worked up into delicate lace by the marvelously ingenious machinery, is an exceedingly interesting occupation. The silk is received in this country in bales shipped from Italy, China and Japan. It is in skeins in the raw state, either greenish white or yellow in color. The finest silk comes from Italy. The thread is like a hair and is as long as the skein. The first operation is to throw it, or in other words bring as many threads together as may be required in very fine or heavier fabrics. When the thread is of the desired thickness it is boiled to remove the gum which is natural to it, and when dry it is wound on spools holding several thousand yards each. This is done by machines of from sixty to ninety spools each.

The spools are then put on a jack, or frames of pins, on which they revolve and from which the silk is fed on a drum or warping mill through brass plates more or less perforated with holes, according to the number of threads to be placed in the warp. An ingenious device registers the yards as they run on the drum, so that when the desired length has been wound the machine is stopped. The warps vary in width according to the work in which they are to be used. The next operation is to run the warps on the warp beams. These beams are steel rollers of various thickness and in width running as high as 154 inches. Transferring the warp from the drum to the beam is a repetition of the operation from the spool to the drum. To every machine there is a main warp which forms the ground work of the pattern, supplemented by several auxiliary wraps of various size threads, with which the pattern is perfected. The main wrap may be several thousand yards long, while the auxiliary wraps are shorter and are replaced from time to time. When the skein is wound on the spools part of it goes in another direction, where the silk is run from the spools on to bobbins. The bobbins are the instruments that in lace-making form the design of the pattern by twisting around the warp threads. At this stage the machine is armed with the material ready to be worked up. And this is the point at which art enters. A corps of draughtsmen are employed making new designs and laying out the work. The design being acceptable, a draughtsman's pattern is drawn to scale, one copy of which goes to the operator on the machine who threads it accordingly by running the threads from the warp beams which set at the bottom of the machine through a slay cloth and perforated steel bars and fastened on the roller at the top.

This operation is of the most exacting character and the greatest care must be exercised, as the misplacing of a single thread will bring disaster to the most elaborate and carefully worked out design. Each thread is handled separately and many hours are required to thread a machine of 154 inches in width. Within that space the pattern is repeated as many times as the width will allow, so that when the fabric is turned out of the machine as many as thirty strips may be found. Another copy of the draughtsman's pattern is sent to the Jacquard puncher, or what may be called a piano machine, where the pattern is punched on heavy cardboard on the same principle as the music rolls of an orchestrion, but with the difference that each piece of card (about 2½x18 inches) contains the design of a single movement of the lace machine. If there are three hundred stitches in a pattern there will be three hundred of these cards strung together. The machine being threaded the cards are adjusted to the Jacquard attachment, without which lace might better be made by hand. The design cards operate droppers in the attachment bars, through which the threads pass and weave the pattern, each movement being complete and perfect. On a machine 154 inches in width as many as 10,000 threads are used. The description of the working of one machine covers all. When the desired length has been run off it goes to the examining room, where skilled women go over it and pick up any flaw that may be found, after which it goes to the dye house to assume any color that may be chosen. From thence it is taken to the finishing room, where it is washed in a prepared bath and then stretched on drying frames in rooms kept at a temperature of 130 degrees. It now reaches its last stage preparatory to going into the world—the carding room—where the draw threads between the strips are pulled out and the strips wound on cards, and then—the milliner.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Ye Modern Hawkshaw.

Police Official (New England town)—Any clews to that mysterious murder?

Detective—Yes, sir; I've arrested all the living members of the family.

Official—Glorious! What evidence have you?

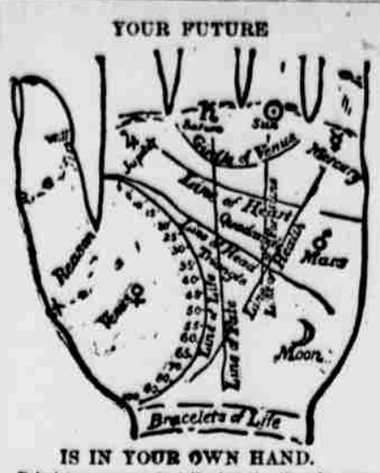
She—Oh, my, Charlie! How good you must be now.—Brooklyn Life.

YOUR FUTURE



IS IN YOUR OWN HAND.

Palmistry assumes to tell what the lines in your hand indicate. It will amuse you, if nothing more. The above diagram almost explains itself. The length of the LINE OF LIFE indicates probable age to which you will live. Each BRACELET gives you thirty years. Well-marked LINE OF HEAD denotes brain power; clear LINE OF FORTUNE, fame or riches. Both combined mean success in life; but you must keep up with modern ideas to win it. You will find plenty of these in Demorest's Family Magazine, so attractively presented that every member of the family is entertained. It is a dozen magazines in one. A CLEAR LINE OF HEART bespeaks tenderness; a straight LINE OF FATE, peaceful life; the reverse if crooked. A well-defined LINE OF HEALTH spares you doctors' bills; so will the health hints in Demorest's. No other magazine publishes so many stories to interest the home circle. You will be subject to extremes of high spirits or despondency if you have the GIRDLE OF VENUS well marked; keep up your spirits by having Demorest's Magazine to read. By subscribing to it for 1894 you will receive a gallery of exquisite works of art of great value, besides the superb premium picture, 17x22 inches, "I'm a Daisy!" which is almost a real baby, and equal to the original oil painting which cost $300; and you will have a magazine that cannot be equaled by any in the world for its beautiful illustrations and subject matter, that will keep you posted on all the topics of the day, and all the fads, and different items of interest about the household, besides furnishing interesting reading matter, both grave and gay, for the whole family; and while Demorest's is not a fashion magazine, its fashion pages are perfect, and you get with it, free of cost, all the patterns you wish to use during the year, and in any size you choose. Send in your subscription at once, only $2.00, and you will really get over $25.00 in value. Address the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York. If you are unacquainted with the Magazine, send for a specimen copy. A large QUADRANGLE means honesty; a large TRIANGLE, generosity; long FIRST DIVISION OF THUMB, strong will; LONG SECOND DIVISION, reasoning faculty. The MOUNT OF JUPITER betokens ambition; that of SATURN, prudence; the SUN, love of splendor; MARS, courage; MOON, imagination; VENUS, love of pleasure; and MERCURY, intelligence. Take our advice as above and you will be sure to possess the last and most valuable quality.

The Scott Township Farmer's Park, Fish and Game Protective Association organized last Saturday afternoon by the election of J. Harvey Creveling as president, W. J. Hidley as secretary, and H. H. Brown as treasurer. J. Harvey Creveling, W. J. Hidley, H. H. Brown, P. W. Mellick and C. W. Kline were chosen as directors for the ensuing year. The repairs at the Lutheran Church are nearly completed. It is expected to be ready for occupancy on Sunday, November 26th. There will be rededication exercises, the sermon to be delivered by Rev. J. Yutzy, of Selinsgrove, the president of Susquehanna Synod.

Among those who will have prominent parts in the cantata of "Jephtha and his Daughter" are Misses Vida Miller, Jessie Ent, Nellie Ent, Hattie Ringrose, Anna Savage, Eura Williams, and Messrs. T. B. THE NEW STYLE pill is of Dr. Pierce's invention and is full of improvements. They are used by everyone—high livers, bad livers, those whose livers are sluggish—all find relief in Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

TO BEGIN WITH, these "Pellets" are the smallest, and easiest to take. They're tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules that every child takes readily.

SECONDLY. — They're perfectly easy in their action—no griping, no disturbance.

THIRDLY.—Their effect is lasting.

FOURTHLY.—Put up in glass—always fresh.

FIFTHLY.—They're the cheapest, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get.

LASTLY.—They absolutely cure Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Sick or Bilious Headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels.

See if Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy won't cure you, if you're suffering from Catarrh. Then, if you can't be cured, the makers will pay you $500 in cash.

MUST LEAVE RECEIPTS.

For some time past there have been numerous complaints about files missing from the Prothonotary's office. The lawyers who could not find the papers they wanted have blamed Prothonotary Quick for not knowing where the papers are, and on the other hand he blames the lawyers who go into the vault and carry away the files without leaving anything to show who has them. In order to avoid this in the future he has provided some printed slips, and has adopted an inflexible rule that any person who desires to take files out of his office, must leave in their place a receipt for the same. This is a good rule and should be strictly enforced.

A Racking Cough

Cured by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Mrs. P. D. HALL, 217 Genessee St., Lockport, N. Y., says:

"Over thirty years ago, I remember hearing my father describe the wonderful curative effects of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. During a recent attack of La Grippe, which assumed the form of a catarrh, soreness of the lungs, accompanied by an aggravating cough, I used various remedies and prescriptions. While some of these medicines partially alleviated the coughing during the day, none of them afforded me any relief from that spasmodic action of the lungs which would seize me the moment I attempted to lie down at night. After ten or twelve such nights, I was

Nearly in Despair,

and had about decided to sit up all night in my easy chair, and procure what sleep I could in that way. It then occurred to me that I had a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I took a spoonful of this preparation in a little water, and was able to lie down without coughing. In a few moments, I fell asleep, and awoke in the morning greatly refreshed and feeling much better. I took a teaspoonful of the Pectoral every night for a week, then gradually decreased the dose, and in two weeks my cough was cured."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

The stock of the Bloomsburg Water Co. is in demand. The par-value is ten dollars per share. A block of shares half paid up making their par value five dollars, was sold on Tuesday for eight dollars per share, which is equivalent to sixteen dollars for a paid up share. Notwithstanding the heavy expenditures in improvements to their plant, the company is paying a good dividend.

If the hair has been made to grow a natural color on bald heads in thousands of cases, by using Hall's Hair Renewer, why will it not in your case?

A petition has been circulated requesting the Reading road to resume the early and late trains, and it has been largely signed. It may be that the fault is with the public and not with the company. Unless those trains have sufficient patronage to pay expenses, it can hardly be expected that the company will continue to run them at a loss.

President Judge Ermentrout and Additional Law Judge Endlich, of Berks county, are having a controversy over the matter of selection of juries. Mr. Endlich handed down an opinion of great length accusing Judge Ermentrout of participation in the selection of juries, to which Mr. Ermentrout made a reple dering Judge Endlich's assertion. The latter has again handed down a lengthy and caustic reply.

Cream—not Skim Milk.

Every farmer and villager, their wives and boys and girls, will be interested in the big little, cream-not-skim-milk paper, the FARM JOURNAL, of Philadelphia. Its 200,000 subscribers are scattered from Maine to Washington, and from Michigan to Texas. It's breezy, crisp, boiled-down pages contain as much information in the course of the year as many of the high-priced weeklies; while its earnest, manly tone and its bright and common sense way of treating farm matters leaves a good and lasting taste in one's mouth. The subscription price is 50 cents a year. We have made arrangements with the publisher by which he will send it one full year free, to all who promptly pay up for our paper. Sample copies will be sent free by addressing a postal request to FARM JOURNAL, Philadelphia, Pa. 10-6-2-m.

A revival of the Benton fair is being agitated.

The turkey dinner at the Parish House last Saturday night netted over one hundred dollars.

The great picture "An American Beauty," to be given to all our readers as a Thanksgiving present, as described in another column, is an instance of our enterprise on their behalf.

The West Pittston Journal is the latest in the field of journalism. It is a six column eight page paper, published by Keystone Publishing Co., with Dorsey Byrls as manager. They claim it to be the first weekly paper published in West Pittston.

Some of the Hungarians at the reservoir gave a boy, fourteen years old, enough whiskey last Saturday to render him insensible. He was carried to his home and his parents were very much alarmed at his condition until they learned the cause, and then they were very angry at the brutes who had given the child the liquor.

Rachael Myra, daughter of Dr. J. C. Rutter of this town, and wife of Dr. C. B. Frontz, of Montgomery, Pa., died at her home in the latter place last Friday morning, after an illness of seven months. She died in childbirth, the infant surviving the mother but a short time. Mrs. Frontz was born here, and resided here until her marriage in 1892. Her death is the first one in the family of Dr. Rutter, which consisted of the parents and eight children. The funeral took place on Monday, and the remains were buried at Hughesville.

CURED ME.

Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—"I desire to tell you just how I was, so that the public may know of your wonderful Swamp-Root. Two years ago last October I had spells of vomiting; I could not keep anything in my stomach; the Doctor said I had consumption of the stomach and bowels; continued to run-down in weight; I was reduced to 60 lbs. I would vomit blood, and at one time as much as three pints; we had two of the best Physicians and they said my case was hopeless. "Oh, my sufferings were terrible." A neighbor told us of your Swamp-Root, and my husband got a bottle; I took it to please him. I used six bottles of Swamp-Root and I am now nearly as well as ever. I weigh 108 lbs., do my own work and take care of my baby. Every one says, I was raised from the dead, and many will not believe that I am still living until they come and see me, and then they can't believe their own eyes, I am looking so well," Very gratefully.
